Summary

I am a professional web developer from Kosovo, experienced in creating modern, responsive websites for over five years. I create user-centric designs with clean, maintainable code, leveraging my expertise in React.js, WordPress, as well as a variety of at least five front-end technologies. I actively monitor industry trends and consistently strive to considerably improve my skills by enthusiastically accepting new challenges. I use my large technical expertise, along with meaningful creativity, to craft high-quality solutions; these solutions are specifically designed to meet client requirements, while I also guarantee performance, functionality, in addition to aesthetic appeal.
